Lindsay Kearns
Tradeswomen Heroes Award Winner - March 2022

Bio

Lindsay joined the BC Centre for Women in the Trades in December 2019, and her work focuses on outreach, leadership and event coordination for the growing network of tradeswomen across BC.

Lindsay is a Red Seal journey electrician and a proud IBEW Local 230 member, queer person, and parent. She has a background in community organizing, urban geography, and food security issues. Prior to embarking on her electrical career, she worked at the University of Victoria as the knowledge mobilization coordinator for a five-year research project into the social economy. Lindsay grew up in Toronto and has made her home on unceded lək̓ʷəŋən land in Victoria since 2001.

Why Lindsay Was Nominated

Lindsay works tirelessly much outside of regular work hours and goes above and beyond to benefit tradeswomen. She mentors, advocates and now works at the BC Centre for Women in the Trades as an outreach coordinator assisting tradeswomen in accessing peer support, mentorship, training, and volunteering.
